Complete Jury in Tennessee Racial Trial

By HELMAN MORIN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. The jury for the Clinton trial was completed today with the selection of four alternates, and the federal government prepared to begin presenting its case against the 16 segregationists.

Selection of two men and two women filled the panel of 12 jurors and four alternates.

Attorneys on both sides had expected to wind up this phase of the jury selection in short order. They were surprised when it took a total of 13 examinations to select four alternates.

The alternate jurors are: W. M. Murphy, a farmer; Mrs. Margie M. Day, Harriman housewife; Mrs. Nola Foster, Sunbright; and Floyd Conner, 62, Lenoir City.

Most of the other nine examined today asked to be excused on the grounds that they would be, as they put it, "embarrassed" in their homes or communities by serving on the jury.

Some told U. S. Dist. Judge Robert L. Taylor that they are friendly with some of the defendants or the defense lawyers.

On trial in U. S. District Court are Northern segregationist John Kasper and 15 Clinton area residents. They are accused of criminal contempt of court for alleged violation of an injunction prohibiting interference with integration of Clinton High School last fall.

Immediately after selection of the alternates, Taylor, in a voice of deep feeling, began his instructions to the jury.

"You are not to talk to anyone about this case. You are not to read newspaper accounts of it. You are not to listen to radio or television about it. You are not to talk among yourselves about it," the judge said.

He said they should not accept any communications by mail or telephone concerning the case.

"If you get any letters or other communications about this case, you must destroy them immediately."

'Copter Lifts Injured Man From Canyon

SEQUOIA-KINGS CANYON NATIONAL PARKS, Calif. (UPI) — An injured hiker was evacuated from rugged terrain at Kings Canyon National Park today in a daring, high altitude flight by an Air Force helicopter.

The hiker, John P. Scott, 23, a University of California graduate student from Stockton, was loaded onto the craft in less than four minutes at the south end of Paliades Lake. The H-21 copter soared into the air at 8:52 a. m. (PDT) for the 20 mile return flight to Bishop on the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada mountain range.

A rescue party with Scott spotted the copter 10 minutes earlier. The craft landed while a light plane circled slowly overhead radioing instruction to the ground crew on how to move Scott's stretcher into position for a fast pickup.

The copter was flown to Bishop early today from Edwards Air Force Base while a new crew of 12 volunteers climbed into the area to help carry Scott through the rugged terrain in a grueling pack trip if the flight was unsuccessful.

An original plan to evacuate Scott by copter yesterday was abandoned because of extreme air turbulence. The Air Force offered to try the pickup, however, after a physician examined Scott and advised that his injuries required treatment as soon as possible.

The pilot of the copter was identified only as "Maj. Zeigler," apparently from Edwards AFB. Coordinator of the operation was Maj. Orville D. Beardsley.

Zeigler's flight was up to an altitude of 13,500 feet through the towering peaks and a "snaking" maneuver through Bishop Pass. Then he bucked terrific turbulence down to the 1,000 foot level of the lake, landing with ease while his rotors blades maintained maximum idling speed during the landing operation for Scott.

Zeigler's flight was made at a minimum fuel load after he had flown over the terrain in a light plane on a reconnaissance mission.

The light plane was piloted by veteran mountain flyer Bob White of Three Rivers who earlier had made food drops to the ground.

Ike Willing to Amend on Civil Rights — Russell

WASHINGTON — Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said after a conference with President Eisenhower today that the administration's "mind is not closed" to amendments which would clarify the administration's civil rights bill.

Russell, a quarterbacking Southern forces opposed to the legislation in the Senate, told newsmen Eisenhower is against enactment of an "punitive" measure.

Eisenhower and Russell talked over the bill for about 50 minutes at the White House.

Although Russell said Eisenhower has an open mind with respect to the possibility of clarifying amendments, the senator refused to express an opinion as to whether the administration will back such amendments.

"The President's mind is open," Russell said. "It is not closed to amendments which would clarify the bill."

In advance of Russell's conference with Eisenhower there were hints at the Senate that sponsors of the administration measure probably will consider compromises.

The White House conference was set up with only a few minutes advance public notice.

Proponents of the administration backed civil rights measure started a drive Monday to bring the bill officially before the Senate.

A week ago Russell denounced the measure as one which would take the South back to post-Civil War reconstruction days, and open the way for forced racial integration of Dixie schools.

He called the proposal "vicious" and a "cunning" plan to go far beyond the ostensible purpose of protecting Negroes' voting rights. That was in sharp contrast to Eisenhower's own description of the measure as "moderate."

Russell expressed doubt that the bill — already approved by the House — will pass the Senate in its present form.

Asked after his session with Eisenhower whether he felt better than he did before going to the White House, Russell smiled and replied: "I can't say that I do."

He added that he had requested the appointment with the President to discuss the bill with particular reference to some provisions that "I regard as very extreme."

This Man Has Found a Way to Beat Inflation; Creates Own Food, Uses Little Cash

By HAL BOYLE
NEAR MARYVILLE, Tenn. — Here lives a man who can whip inflation by the only possible way. He doesn't buy much. He rarely spends in public. He lives by a personal standard above the changing dollar.

"This is no stunt with me," said Bert Garner, a tall, bent intellectual who at the age of 71 points out he can and does at times exist at the rate of 15 cents a day—or less.

He hand grinds corn and soybeans, puts in a little chocolate or powdered milk, and makes a meal of it and says he is satisfied.

Bert can still climb 25 to 30 miles a day through the Great Smoky Mountains. "I prefer simple ways," he says.

To understand Bert you have to know him a bit. He doesn't fit any pigeonhole you know. He never will. If he found out he did, he would change.

Bert has studied at a number of universities across the country. He worked in all kinds of wandering jobs. He spent about a dozen years with the U. S. land-grant people.

He lives now all alone in a woodland building of his choice. It is a two-room cabin he built 37 years ago. It is in the area where his ancestors arrived some 200 years ago—or nearly so.

Bert is slender, wide minded, widely read, and cheerfully proud that his way of life isn't for the family man.

He has a major criticism of civilization as most of us know it.

Both Parties on Spot in Civil Rights Battle

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — In the 20th century the Democratic and Republican parties — no matter what their campaign promises — have never passed a civil rights bill through Congress.

Republicans are trying it now in face of a Senate filibuster by Southern Democrats. If they win, some political careers may be affected. And Republicans hope for future election victories — based on expectation of a grateful Northern Negro vote — go up.

President Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower have helped eliminate racial discrimination — by executive order. But Democrats' promises of action on a civil rights bill through Congress have been a political joke.

"They couldn't, as a party, make good. Southern Democrats were always there to block the way with a filibuster. Any filibuster could have been broken if enough Northern and Western Democrats and

State May Lose 20 Millions in Highway Work

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK — The Arkansas Highway Commission may have to forego or postpone around $20 million in highway work because of lack of state funds.

And the current financing situation has become so critical that an August contract-letting has been postponed and a meeting has been called with contractors to discuss the matter.

These facts were brought out today in a discussion by commission members with newsmen as a meeting of the commission broke up.

The possible curtailment in construction during the fiscal biennium which started July 1 would result because approximately 10 million dollars in needed state funds is not available to match a similar amount of available federal funds, commission members and Highway Director Herbert Eldridge said.

If the state funds become available later, the federal funds may still be used for matching.

But if state funds are not forthcoming the federal funds could be lost.

Eldridge described the current financial tight as being due to "a combination of circumstances."

He and four of the five commission members described these at a change made by the 1957 Legislature in the bond year which meant that new construction money will not be available as early in the fiscal year as it has been previously; the diversion of several million dollars of highway funds for added county and municipal aid; and a slowing down of the rate at which highway revenues have been increasing during the past fiscal year.

Highway Commissioner Jim H. Crain of Wilson, who has frequently been at odds with Eldridge, complained that one factor was the use of Highway Department funds for work classified as maintenance, which Crain said should have been done under contract.

Crain declared there was no question but that it was more expensive to do this work with Highway Department crews than it fore new construction money starts coming in.

Contractors are paid periodically as their jobs progress and recent favorable weather has made it possible to push construction at rapid rate.

The commissioners agreed that it might be necessary for banks to "carry" some contractors to enable them to finish projects now in progress.

Eldridge said that an 8-million-dollar balance was on hand on July 1 and that it had been 10 million "we could have gotten by okay."

Eldridge and the commissioners, including Chain, agreed that the situation would not affect the federal interstate program in Arkansas.

In this program, the matching rate is $9 of federal money for $1 of state money. Most other phases of highway construction are matched on a 50-50 basis.

The commission cancelled a contract-letting which had been set for August 14, but said a September 18 letting would be held as scheduled.

Additional contract-lettings were set for Oct. 23 and Dec. 4.

about it—and, on occasion, complain about it.

"They're in a rat race, trying to keep up with the Joneses. Sometimes I feel that it is a good thing some people work so hard."

"Our education system doesn't prepare people for the right kind of leisure. You can work, or you can live. I like to live."

Bert himself, who is interested in such momentous questions as the distribution of snakes in the 50-acre wilderness in which he built his cabin, also knows that to a disciple of nature and considered indolence there can be no spare time.

There are 30 different kinds of trees in his woodland empire, and he has grown 28 different fruits or vegetables in his garden.

The woodchuck is his neighbor. At the moment seven stunks live under and out of his cabin.

"We get along fine," he said. "They come out at the whippoorwill's dusk, and go back at the whippoorwill's dawn. I tell people I live in Paradise, I do."

Bert has worked in New York and Philadelphia, studied on the West Coast. But either a greatness or weakness in his being has always brought him home to his woodland cabin near the hills of his birth. He figures he has left a job only 20 of his 71 years, and some of those 20 years were wasted.

In an area of creeping inflation, the area of his desire enlarges. The berries along the mountain trail red his palate and his path.

His home has no plumbing, no electric lights, no radio, no television, no telephone. His daily bill—two gallons of kerosene, 10 light his lamps—is 33 cents a year.

"No man raising a family could live as I do," he said, and when asked what was the main virtue of his usual way of life, he replied: "Freedom."

Bert says he has lived in depression times for as little as $15 a year, and today can live comfortably — the woods have their bright free diet adventures — for $100 a year, and spend at least $40 of this amount on books, new papers, and magazines. Outside of common sense, his major vice is reading.

"Many people don't know what to do with leisure or old age," said Bert. "I have reduced life to its lowest common denominator. It doesn't cost much to live, and think."

"If everyone lived like I do, civilization probably would go kee-flo."

"Well maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea to start it all over again from scratch!"

Republicans were willing to team up to do it. It never happened.

The outnumbered Republicans can't do it now unless enough of them, plus enough Northern and Western Democrats, join forces. That remains to be seen. Despite present excitement, passage of a civil rights bill now is far from a fact.

There is political irony in the present situation. In Congress, where they are the minority party, the Republicans are leading the way. Sen. Knowland of California, Senate Republican leader, is captain on the civil rights side.

He can get only political good out of this win or lose. He is leaving the Senate next year and may seek the Republican presidential nomination in 1960. He can expect Northern Negroes, if he should get the nomination, to remember him as a man who fought for civil rights.

On the other hand the Senate's Democratic leader, Lyndon Johnson of Texas, is on a hot spot. He's a Southerner. But he's a man who also may have presidential ambitions in 1960.

If he votes against this civil rights bill his chances of heading the Democratic ticket diminish. If they're not wrecked, if he doesn't oppose it in some way — if only by trying to get the bill softened by amendments — he may hurt himself in Texas. He's been staying pretty much in the background.

And right beside Knowland stands Vice President Nixon, who at the moment might seem to have the inside track for the Republican nomination three years from now. For that matter, most of the Republicans are standing with Knowland.

They are therefore carrying through on campaign promises—although vague in the Republican 1956 platform — and on Eisenhower's program. The President in his State of the Union message last Jan. 10 called for passage of this civil rights bill.

The Democratic 1956 platform on civil rights was weak by comparison. It was a time when the rest of the party didn't want to give the Southerners an excuse to vote for Eisenhower. But both parties had their eyes on the South that year.

Neither party in its platform was willing to go so far as to say it endorsed the Supreme Court ban on public school segregation. If the Republicans can win passage of a meaningful civil rights communications about this case, do not read them," Taylor said. "Give them to someone else to keep until the trial is over."

During the weeks preceding bill, they can hope for a strong Negro vote in the large industrial centers of the North. It might be enough to let them regain control of Congress in the 1958 elections and retain the presidency and Congress in 1960.

The Roosevelt-Truman grip on the Negro vote has slipped since Eisenhower entered the White House. After the 1950 elections, the Associated Press reported Nov. 9: "In nearly all the great Northern centers of Negro population there was a definite trend away from the Democratic ticket although not enough to give Eisenhower a majority in any major area of Negro registration."

This trend was characterized at the time by James L. Hicks, managing editor of Harlem's largest newspaper, the Amsterdam News, as a divorce from the Democrats rather than a marriage to the Republicans.

He said: "The divorce is carrying on a flirtation with a new friend but he isn't going to invite him in unless he put a ring on her finger."

"This civil rights bill, no doubt, would be the ring."

opening of the trial many persons, in and out of the federal courtroom, have received abusive and threatening telephone calls and letters.

Taylor would not say whether he had received any.

But the extent of feeling aroused by the case was evident by answers and statements of the jury candidates during the past three days.

Trial of Kasper and the "Clinton 15" has been heralded as a major test of the U. S. government's power to enforce the Supreme Court's order to end segregation in the public schools.

Kasper, like the other 15, is being tried for criminal contempt. All are accused of violating a federal court injunction against interfering with racial integration at the school.

But neither he nor the battery of lawyers defending the Tennesseans concealed their distaste for the joint trial. Kasper is represented solemnly by J. Benjamin Simmons, Washington, D. C., attorney.

Kasper told a reporter: "They (the other defense lawyers) came into this when they heard money was being raised. Politics and publicity were behind it too."

Robert L. Dobbs of Memphis, spokesman for the defense lawyers, said there is no coordination of any kind with Simmons.

"I don't know what he plans to do, or if he will can any wises or anything else," Dobbs said. "I don't suppose Simmons any prouder of being with us than we are of being with him."

Lawyers for "The 15" — as they describe themselves in court — claim there is so much "mass prejudice" against Kasper that the joint trial works to the disadvantage of their clients.

Dobbs said he was pleased with the jury. It is composed of: John T. Reynolds, 27, assistant bank teller; W. E. Coker, 37, former justice of the peace; Powell May 64, retired Western Union operations manager; Mrs. Jessie Burnett, about 57, a schoolteacher; Herbert F. Hartman, 70, retired businessman;

Oscar Beeler, middle-aged farmer; George W. Cruise, proprietor of a country general store; A.S. Bartlett, livestock dealer; Dana E. Phipps, 58, farmer; Thomas R. Linderman, 62, retired railroadman; James Root, 72, farmer Mrs. Margaret M. Whaley, 45, housewife.

Four Negroes were among the 31 people examined for this jury. The government accepted two. The defense challenged them all. In all, defense lawyers used peremptory challenges to dismiss eight candidates. Government attorneys challenged three. The other eight were excused "for cause" — that is, when they said they had firm convictions on segregation in the schools, "missing the races," or "some of the other highly charged aspects of the case."

Questioning by the opposing lawyers foreshadowed a major 15 defendants.

area of battle in the trial. U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford pounded at the candidates of one theme—respect for law, even when they disagreed with a legal order.

"Do you believe a citizen has a right to decide for himself which law he will obey and which ones he will not obey?"

In swift reply, when his turn came, Dobbs asked whether the candidate knew the rights guaranteed by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. "Do you believe every person has a right to express his opinion about a law? Do you believe in freedom of speech, of the right to assemble? Would you grant those freedoms to these 15 defendants?"

Members of the Tarpley-Leslie wedding party were entertained with a rehearsal dinner in the dining room of the Barrow Hotel Saturday night. Miss Florine Miller, aunt of the bride-elect, was hostess.

Centering the head table was a crystal corgie containing pink bougainvillea, baby breath and white tapers. On the adjoining tables were crystal candelabras with one white taper and bougainvillea.

The places of the guests were marked by dainty pink cards. Attending were the bride couple, Miss Miller, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tarpley, Mr. and Mrs. Vick Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Leslie, Rev. and Mrs. L. T. Lawrence, Rev. and Mrs. Bill McLean, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Shaddox, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Goff, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Goff, Mrs. Bill Elsass, Miss Both Bridges, Miss Linda Roberts, Miss Day Steele, Dean Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Alston.

After the dinner the wedding party went to the First Presbyterian Church where the bride-elect, lovely in a tulle-trimmed gown of light blue cotton chifon with a front panel of white embroidered lace, conducted her rehearsal, assisted by Mrs. Roy Stephenson.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tarpley of Hope and Mrs. G. C. Leslie and the late Mr. Leslie of Springfield, Ark., are the groom's parents.

The betrothal vows were said at the foot of the altar which was flanked on either side by jade foliage, large baskets of white gladioli, and seven-branched candelabras. After the betrothal, the couple, with their honor attendants, ascended the steps to continue the ceremony before decorations of

Miss Charlotte Tarpley Pledges Vows
The First Presbyterian Church of Hope was the setting for the wedding of Miss Charlotte Aleta Tarpley and Kenneth Samuel Leslie, on Sunday afternoon, July 7, at 3 o'clock with the Rev. William S. McLean of the First Presbyterian Church, Texarkana, Ark., and Rev. L. T. Lawrence of the First Presbyterian Church, Hope, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bridesmaids who wore frocks identical to that of the bride, were: Mrs. Bill Elsass, Memphis, Tennessee; Miss Kay Steel, Little Rock, Arkansas; Miss Both Bridges, Hope, Arkansas; and Miss Linda Roberts, Texarkana, Arkansas. They, as well as the matron of honor, carried crescent bouquets of Beauty aspers. Marcia Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dean Miller, Parkdale, Arkansas, and cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Her frock was of white nylon with a full hoop skirt of tiny nylon lace ruffles. She carried a white net basket filled with white daisies, and pinned white lilies of the valley in her hair.

Mr. Willis Leslie, Monticello, Arkansas, served his brother as best man. Ushers, who also lighted the candles, were Bob Shaddox and James H. Miller, uncle of the bride. Other groomsmen were J. A. Cobart and Jimmy Goff, both of Texarkana, Texas.

Mrs. Tarpley chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of dusty rose velvet with a full skirt. Her rose velvet hat featured velvet ruffles around the brim. She pinned a Cymbidium orchid at her shoulder.

Mrs. V. T. Leslie, Springfield, Arkansas, sister-in-law of the groom, chose a lovely frock of navy blue with white accessories. She also pinned a Cymbidium orchid at her shoulder.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Tarpley, Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Leslie, Mr. Tarpley, the bride and bridegroom, and the feminine members of the bridal party.

Mr. Luther Hollamon furnished organ music throughout the afternoon.

Presiding at the guest book was Miss Florine Miller, Houston, Texas, aunt of the bride.

The reception table was centered with the bride's bouquet. The cloth of white organdy and net over tulle was caught at the corners by white satin ribbons. A sterling silver wedding cake knife decorated with lilies of the valley and white satin ribbon was used by the bride and groom to cut the first slice of the four-tiered cake decorated in white shells and swans, with a miniature bride and bridegroom at the top.

Alternating at the table were Mrs. Carl Dean Miller, Parkdale, Arkansas, aunt of the bride, Mrs. James H. Miller, Hope, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Clifford Franks, Hope, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Willis Leslie, Monticello, Arkansas, sister-in-law of the groom. Others in the houseparty were Miss Paula prie deau for the wedding prayer. Luther Hollamon, organist, provided a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Haskell Jones of Texarkana, Arkansas, who sang "Because" and "O Promise Me." Following the wedding prayer she sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

The lovely bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Her gown was an original creation and was fashioned of white peau de soie and lace with a bouffant skirt of white tulle. The tight fitted bodice had a peplum of Chantilly lace and the long fitted lace sleeves ended in lily points over the bride's dainty hands. The chapel train of peau de soie was outlined with bands of Chantilly lace. Her veil of illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride carried out the old tradition of something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue, and a penny in her shoe.

Mrs. Bob Shaddox, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a waltz length dress of green silk chifon over tulle with a cummerbund which crossed in front. Long flowing panels of chifon hung from the v-necked back of her dress. In her hair she wore a bandeau of matching material with a single pink aster on one side.

The bridesmaids who wore frocks identical to that of the bride, were: Mrs. Bill Elsass, Memphis, Tennessee; Miss Kay Steel, Little Rock, Arkansas; Miss Both Bridges, Hope, Arkansas; and Miss Linda Roberts, Texarkana, Arkansas. Raley, Mrs. Jerry Johnson, Miss Charlotte Rogers, all of Hope, and Miss Arenah Welsh of Texarkana, Arkansas. Each member of the reception party wore a corsage of either pink or white carnations. The couple left immediately after the reception for a wedding trip to New Orleans. For travel the bride selected an orchid from her bouquet and clipped it on the shoulder of her orchid lined suit, which was accented with a lace collar. She wore black patent shoes with matching bag, white hat and gloves.

The bride is a graduate of Hope High School, Hope, Arkansas, and attended Austin College, Sherman, Texas. She received her B. S. E. degree from Hendrix College, Conway, Arkansas.

The hostess presented the bride with a corsage of pink Althea's with folds of pink tulle tied with pink satin ribbon. Mrs. Irvin Burke presented Mrs. Trula Coffee, mother of the groom with a corsage similar to that of the bride.

As the guests were seated each was given a tiny wedding bell with "Dee and Heitha" written on it, later the honored guests presented with many lovely gifts.

Mrs. C. R. Samuel presided over the bride's book.

The Burke home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. On the mantel was placed a white milk glass bowl filled with pink roses, and beside the honoree's chair was placed a basket of pink zinnias. In the dining room the table was covered with an off white lace cloth and centered with a crystal bowl filled with dainty pink althea. Around the bowl folds of pink tulle tied with pink ribbon bows and two branched candelabra completed the table decoration.

Meaning of "Love"
Hard to Pin Down

Dear Dorothy Dix: The word "love" appears constantly in your column; just what do you mean by it? As far as I can tell there are as many definitions for "love" as there are people on earth.

To me, love means mature love (psychologically), made up of understanding, respect and admiration. I don't think a confused emotional state should be referred to as "love."

STUART S.

Dear Stuart: Since the word "love" has been a favorite topic of conversation, the pet subjects of writers, artists and musicians. Do you expect me to do in a short column what other writers have failed to accomplish in millions of books?

You're right about one thing. Love does mean different things to different people.

Your components of love are good as far as they go, but other qualities must be present before love is born. Compassion, for instance.

The most complete definition of love is also the shortest. "God is love," says St. John, and what more can you, I or anyone say than that?

Dear Dorothy Dix: Don't you think husbands and wives should discuss their faults? My wife is a wonderful woman, a good cook and a fine mother, but she does have some faults. She's very touchy if I try to talk about them.

Dear T. L.: Would you like to have a hard day's work crowned with an airing of your shortcomings? I very much doubt it. If your wife has some outstanding failing that could be corrected, mention it and offer to help cure it. Otherwise, keep still.

Dear Dorothy Dix: In a very weak moment I became tangled up with another woman. I really do love my wife, to whom I've been married for 24 years. I want to get out of the mess I'm in, but how can I discharge my responsibility to the other woman?

GAYLORD

Dear Gaylord: What responsibility? The lady is of an age to know her own mind. If you really want out, say so.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I develop a terrible inferiority complex after I've had a few drinks. How can I overcome this?

EARLE

Dear Earle: Say no when the drinks are offered. If you can't resist temptation, leave the room, or stay away altogether from places where liquor is served. You probably develop more than an inferiority complex, but can't quite remember.

XXXIII
They knelt upon the ground, Garde turned so that his body would shield the flashlight's beam from the street. Valley held the light low, with her raincoat spread to contain the circle of light within its tent. Rain fell in a dreary drip.

He drew the plastic sheath down and away from the leather bag. There was some lettering on the side of it, the gold-leaf somewhat faded and worn.

But the name could be read: R. S. LILLARD, M.D.

Inside, there were the usual things carried in such a medical kit. A row of small bottles, a few small boxes — four of these — some basic instruments — small forceps, a stethoscope, a pair of scissors, a probe, a small bundle of tongue blades, a piece of folded paper — and a small, blue-black gun.

Garde wiped his hands with his handkerchief and tucked the gun into his jacket pocket, taking from that same pocket a pair of clamp scissors.

Garde used the scissors, carefully, to draw out the piece of folded paper. There were two sheets — both about the same size. One proved to be a certified check for $5,000. The other was to unsigned note, an agreement to effect that Don Laurent would leave the town of Bayard, and its environs, within 36 hours. "All obligations and relationships with the Lillard family paid in full."

Garde read this remarkable document aloud, awe rounding his voice. Valley stared at him; once she swayed a little, and his free hand went out to her. They knelt there on the ground for a time, their eyes piecing out the story of blackmail and a father's wish to protect his son. Valley's nerveless fingers let the flashlight drop to the ground. In the darkness, Garde reached for it.

"What," Valley whispered then, "are we going to — do?"

"I think," he said then to the girl, who had watched his every move as one fascinated or hypnotized. "I'm sure we should take this directly to Kurt's attorney."

Valley looked at them for another second or two, then she whirled toward Garde who waited at the head of the entry steps. "Garde," she said imperiously, "you must go to Nan at once and tell her about all this."

"We are going straight to Bayard," Mr. Peredoe told her. The entire group had moved toward the wide door, a patrol car was waiting beyond Garde's in the street.

Garde put Valley into his car; the prosecuting attorney got in

Score Takes a Bride Despite Eye Injury

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla., (UP) — Herb Score, Cleveland's "mull-dollar" Southpaw, takes a wife today before starting work to determine how his injured eye will affect his pitching.

Father Thomas Kelley of Rosedale, N. Y., who inducted Score on his baseball career, was to marry him in a high mass ceremony at St. Mark's Catholic Church here to pretty Nancy McNamara of Lantana, Fla., whom Score met in high school.

Hundreds of guests gathered for the wedding and reception, but most of the pitcher's baseball friends were unable to attend because of their playing schedules. Cleveland General Manager Hank Greenberg, however, told Score he would be on hand if possible.

Score, who turned 24 last month, was struck in the right eye in a night game at Cleveland May 7 by a line drive off the bat of Yankee Gil McDougal. It was feared at first that the 1935 rookie of the year might lose his vision in the eye, but after two months of recuperating, mostly at the home of his mother, Mrs. Annie M. Score, in Lake Worth, Fla., Score was confident he could resume his mound duties with the Indians.

After a five-day honeymoon at undisclosed place, Score and his bride will go to Cleveland Monday where the handsome, blond fireballer will undergo thorough medical examination to determine the condition of his eye, before beginning workouts.

Score's bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert McNamara of Lantana, Fla., was graduated in June from St. Mary's College at Notre Dame. She was with beside her; her eyes widened a little at this, and the gentleman nodded. "O. K.," she agreed, and drove away.
